IN MEMORIAM.

DIED, November 12th, 1873, WILLIAM CHILES DAVIS, at the residence of his father-in-law, Hon. J. P. Reed, Anderson, S. C. Born September 24th, 1841.

His ancestors, paternal and maternal, were Virginians, and his grand-parents removed to this State in early life, settling in Abbeville County. His father, Dr. John Davis, an exemplary Christian and an accomplished scholar, was educated in Philadelphia, where he graduated in medicine in 1839. Subsequently he returned to his native place to follow his profession; also, editing the People's Magazine, a monthly medical, scientific and literary magazine. Here in 1840 he was married to Mary Chiles, daughter of William Chiles, of the same County, a few years afterward removing to Marietta, Ga., where he resumed the practice of medicine. In 1855 he was called to the Chair of Anatomy in the Medical College, then located at Savannah, which he ably and acceptably occupied until failing health forced him to resign, and to return to his home in Marietta, where he died in 1858.

William, the subject of this brief sketch, was thus at a tender age thrown upon his own resources, and as the first-born, with the duties of the household in a measure devolving upon him; a position which the inexperienced stripling nobly and faithfully filled. For eight months he had read medicine with his father, preparatory to entering the medical school; but when death deprived him of his father, director and supporter, he entered as salesman the drug store of Wm. Root & Co., of Marietta, continuing at this place until the beginning of the late war. Being possessed of an ardent spirit of patriotism in the highest and truest meaning of the word, he took a keen and active interest in the momentous issues at stake; and early in the beginning of strife he came to Charleston and joined the Palmetto Guard, to stand side by side with the devoted sons of his own beloved State in the heroic struggle of the South for political freedom. And through all his subsequent life, amid the radical changes of public sentiment with many, and the perpetual jarring of the new order of things with the old, he remained a warm and unswerving advocate of the principles which actuated him at the outset to abandon the ease, comforts and pleasures of home, to risk his all for the cause which he had espoused.

When the war was over, and all save honor was lost to the South, he turned unflinchingly to face the stern duties of the hour, and with stout heart and earnest endeavor, sought to establish himself in a comfortable business foothold in Anderson, S. C. Here in December, 1867, he was married to ELEANOR C., third daughter of Hon. J. P. Reed, of Anderson. In the January preceding, desiring a wider field of enterprise and usefulness, he had left the drug house of Dowie & Moore, of Charleston, becoming a partner of the firm in 1870, and continuing as such until his untimely death.

An eminent characteristic of him was his cheerful and hopeful disposition, his untiring aspirations after a higher culture, and his ardent views of life. Of the strictest integrity, ambitious to acquire a high degree of intellectual and moral excellence, and thoroughly refined, he was one who graced the name of friend in an unusual sense. Indeed, he possessed a wonderful facility of "making friends," and a friend once made, he never lost; but, as time passed on, and the uprightness and staunch loyalty of his character was proved, the bonds of sympathy and respect were more firmly united. Of dignified and commanding presence, yet the tinnest child instinctively felt the genial warmth of his heart, and the humble fellow-countryman turned to him with confidence and trust. As proof of the deep and tender sympathies of his nature, it is related of him by an eye witness, that once when traveling at the North, a poor, blind beggar solicited charity from the passengers on the train. At sight of the miserable creature, his pitying soul was touched, and his eyes brimmed with tears as he reached forth to give him alms, doubtless realizing the Scriptural truth of how "blessed" it is to give.

Although not a member, he was a constant attendant at the Episcopal Church, for he was by nature eminently pious and devotional, possessing a deep reverence for all things sacred, with an abiding love and confidence in his Savior, and a sweet reliance on His divine will.

Self-reliant, energetic and enterprising, a career of usefulness and prosperity seemed expanding before him, until the bright prospect was suddenly blighted by an attack of Typhus fever. In May, 1873, he was smitten by this disease, and for seven months lingered prostrate and helpless, yet exhibiting a degree of patience and gentleness through all the tedious and trying ordeal, that seemed almost marvelous. Never a gesture, never a murmur of impatience or irritability, his chief care appeared to be to forget self, and to cheer the loving ones around him. How he strove to lighten the load of anguish which so soon was to fall upon the heart of his devoted wife, who, throughout all his illness, had nursed him with a tenderness and faithful assiduity which was most touching to witness. At last, perfectly conscious and entirely resigned to the will of His Heavenly Father, he sank in the long and dreamless sleep.

"Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace."

A FRIEND.

Charleston, January, 1874.

DIED, at the residence of Thomas Dickinson, Esq., near Pendleton, S. C., on the 19th of December, 1873, MRS. MARY SCOTT, a native of Abbeville County, in the 85th year of her age. She was the widow of William Scott, who was a soldier in the Revolutionary war. She had been a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church for more than fifty years, and rejoiced in the hope of a blessed immortality beyond the grave.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY FOR CANVASSERS—A GIFT CHROMO. We have previously announced that the publishers of the "RURAL CAROLINIAN," are offering two beautiful chromos to its subscribers—one as a Gift, the other for Two Dollars—only one-quarter of its cost at retail.

We have one of the chromos, in our office, and take pleasure in adding our testimony to that of the publishers, as regards their quality and character. They are not of that class of cheap pictures usually offered by Northern publishers for the purpose of introducing their publications into Southern households. On the contrary, they have been executed in the best style known to the art, causing a wonder in the minds of all who have seen them, how they can be furnished at such low prices.

The publishers are organizing a competent corps of Canvassing Agents in every County of each of the Southern States. Those who have not already made application, and are desirous of undertaking the duties in their Counties, should apply immediately to the publishers, in order that they may commence canvassing at once, as the chromos are now ready for delivery. Those persons who are not called on by a canvassing agent, will have a specimen copy of the Magazine sent to them gratuitously, setting forth fully the terms, by addressing Walker, Evans & Cogswell, Charleston, S. C.

WILD CHERRY BALSAM.—The memory of Dr. Wistar is embalmed in the hearts of thousands whom his Balm of Wild Cherry has cured of coughs, colds, consumption, or some other form of pulmonary disease. It is now over forty years since this preparation was brought before the public, and yet the demand for it is constantly increasing.

Facts worth knowing! One of the best indications of the worth and prosperity of a place is to be found at the Establishment of Messrs. I. H. HALL & Co., located at Nos. 2, 4, 6, 8, Market St., 223 & 225 East Bay. The rapidly increasing business last year of this firm, has induced them to enlarge their Establishment, which now supplies every conceivable article that can be required in the building of a house, from a baluster to any size timber. Our friends in the City, and throughout the State who contemplate building a house can be supplied with all the materials necessary for its construction, at prices and quality of work which will save a large percentage in the cost of building. They are Agents for Asbestos Roofing Felt, endorsed by some of the best firms in the country. Send for price list and circulars.
